

NDA's

“...the process of producing NDAs is tedious and repetitive”

All businesses large and small use NDAs (Non-Disclosure Agreements) to protect their proprietary and confidentiality. Not only is the process of producing NDAs tedious and repetitive, but the sheer volume of NDAs, even in medium sized organisations can quickly become overwhelming and costly.

“...can quickly become overwhelming and costly”

The core challenges of producing NDAs within an already cost and resource pressed in-house legal teams or other similar business units for organisations are:

- The production of NDAs is repetitive and tedious - leaving room for errors and avoidable oversights
- The volume of NDAs is difficult to track and can become a cost burden to deal with manually
- The tracking of approvals and signatures is difficult
- There is not a proper, consolidated workflow in place related to NDAs, which leads to a lack of visibility and control from the legal teams, the potential for conflicts and the submission of repetitive NDAs, and many more avoidable obstacles to success and efficiency
